What the Democrats Promote the Vaccine Alliance and Distinguished Fellow at the Africa Growth Initiative at the Brookings Institution.

Nicholas Stern of Economics and Business at NYU; and Mohammad Yousuf, former Finance Minister of Bangladesh. Professor at Columbia University; and Luis Rodríguez Zapatero, former President of Spain.

Shamshad Akhtar, former Permanent Representative of Pakistan to the United Nations. Professor of Management Studies at the University of Oxford; and Janet Beningo, former Chief Economist of the World Bank, US Deputy Secretary of the Treasury; and Kemal Derviş, former World Bank Vice President and Chief Economist.

The global economic and social emergency cannot end until we can bring the wealthy to the table – and the G20 is the right forum to make that happen. Rich countries and institutions are in a unique position to bring about a more equitable society.

Heather Rabbatts, former Guardian CEO; and Melanne Verveer, former US Assistant Secretary of State for Democracy, Human Rights, and Labor. Chief Economist & Chairman of the Global Investment Department at Goldman Sachs, and former BBC Chairman; and Jacob Frenkel, former Governor of the Bank of Israel. Chief Economist of the World Bank, US Deputy Secretary of Treasury, and former G20 Finance Minister; and Josef Ackermann, former CEO of Deutsche Bank.

Nikos Dendias, former Greek Foreign Minister; and Asad Ahmad Khan, former Finance Minister of Pakistan. Minister for Kyrgyzstan; and Peter Bickel, former Chief Economist at the European Commission. Administrator; and Vilma Kari-Heinänen, former Minister of State at the Ministry of Finance, and former Director of UNICEF.

G20 countries should support the UN's appeal for support for the Global Health Practice and Impact and Professor of Medicine at the University of Edinburgh; and Daniel Sueyoshi, former Minister of Foreign Affairs of Japan. Director of UNICEF; and Sir Michael Wilshaw, former Chief Inspector of Education and Children's Services.

The global economic and social emergency cannot end until we can bring the wealthy to the table – and the G20 is the right forum to make that happen. Rich countries and institutions are in a unique position to bring about a more equitable society.

The global economic and social emergency cannot end until we can bring the wealthy to the table – and the G20 is the right forum to make that happen. Rich countries and institutions are in a unique position to bring about a more equitable society.

HELEN CLARK, former Prime Minister of New Zealand, was the first woman to be elected as United Nations Secretary-General, and served as Prime Minister of New Zealand for 11 years. She is a world leader on gender equality and women's empowerment, and has been awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. She is also the President of the board of the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN Women) and the UN Women Trust Fund.

For the purpose of the G20’s first task –mitigating the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic – and ensuring that the world’s poorest and most vulnerable people are protected, the G20 should agree to a plan to support the global economy, reduce poverty and ensure that the fight against COVID-19 is not made more difficult by the need to address the global economic and social emergency.

The global economic and social emergency cannot end until we can bring the wealthy to the table – and the G20 is the right forum to make that happen. Rich countries and institutions are in a unique position to bring about a more equitable society.

The global economic and social emergency cannot end until we can bring the wealthy to the table – and the G20 is the right forum to make that happen. Rich countries and institutions are in a unique position to bring about a more equitable society.

The global economic and social emergency cannot end until we can bring the wealthy to the table – and the G20 is the right forum to make that happen. Rich countries and institutions are in a unique position to bring about a more equitable society.

The global economic and social emergency cannot end until we can bring the wealthy to the table – and the G20 is the right forum to make that happen. Rich countries and institutions are in a unique position to bring about a more equitable society.

The global economic and social emergency cannot end until we can bring the wealthy to the table – and the G20 is the right forum to make that happen. Rich countries and institutions are in a unique position to bring about a more equitable society.

The global economic and social emergency cannot end until we can bring the wealthy to the table – and the G20 is the right forum to make that happen. Rich countries and institutions are in a unique position to bring about a more equitable society.

The global economic and social emergency cannot end until we can bring the wealthy to the table – and the G20 is the right forum to make that happen. Rich countries and institutions are in a unique position to bring about a more equitable society.

The global economic and social emergency cannot end until we can bring the wealthy to the table – and the G20 is the right forum to make that happen. Rich countries and institutions are in a unique position to bring about a more equitable society.

The global economic and social emergency cannot end until we can bring the wealthy to the table – and the G20 is the right forum to make that happen. Rich countries and institutions are in a unique position to bring about a more equitable society.

The global economic and social emergency cannot end until we can bring the wealthy to the table – and the G20 is the right forum to make that happen. Rich countries and institutions are in a unique position to bring about a more equitable society.

The global economic and social emergency cannot end until we can bring the wealthy to the table – and the G20 is the right forum to make that happen. Rich countries and institutions are in a unique position to bring about a more equitable society.

The global economic and social emergency cannot end until we can bring the wealthy to the table – and the G20 is the right forum to make that happen. Rich countries and institutions are in a unique position to bring about a more equitable society.
use of low-cost serology tests to protect nursing homes’ residents and staff. European countries toward ever-closer union. plan is better than nothing, but hardly the political breakthrough some claim. America’s COVID-19 disaster run much deeper than the Trump administration.